

Client Style	Client Fear	Trauma History	Natural reaction	Nurture reaction
Clingy and demanding “I need you”	Provider will disappear	Abandoned, their parent threatened suicide, or to send them away	Push away because they can never get enough. The “empty bucket” syndrome.	Identify fears Reassurance Be real with them Teach how to get his/her needs met
Out to get you Sneaky to violent “I’m in charge”	Pain	Assault	Punish	Validate worth Reassure safety Identify fears Help them to be in control when they can Basic nurturing
Parentified: “I’ll take care of you”	Abandonment Rejection	Neglect Parental substance abuse	Let them continue behavior	Unhook from the caretaker role Value them as a person with their own needs Teach play and social skills
Driven Achiever “Love me for what I do”	Won’t be loved without success	Early loss Deprivation Emotional distance	Praise efforts	Focus on intrinsic self worth without minimizing success
Disengaged: “Don’t notice me”	No one is there	Unavailable adult	Ignore	Press for decisions Primitive nurturing at a developmentally appropriate level
Remote/Disengaged “People don’t matter, possessions do”	I must take care of myself	Abuse Abandonment Multiple rejections	Try to care about, then anger and rejection	Provide for physical needs Stay emotionally available